Lake County has a population of about 8,130 residents. Billed as the “Tallest Town in Oregon” with an elevation of 4,802 ft. above sea level, the City of Lakeview has about 2,300 residents. The economy consists primarily of agriculture, timber, livestock and government. Lake County is also proud to be on the forefront of renewable energy exploration including solar, geothermal and biomass.

Known as Oregon’s Outback you can kick your boots off and stay awhile. Some call it the middle of nowhere . . . others call it the center of their world. So much to see! From mountains to high desert, the landscape is as varied as the people. Charming towns, locally owned businesses, agriculture and wide-ranging recreation opportunities can be found throughout the County. There is a wealth of recreation including hiking, mountain biking, backpacking, horseback riding, off-highway vehicle use, snowmobiling, cross-country skiing, sledding, fishing and boating.

Sitting in the northwestern corner of the Great Basin, the area has prominent geologic features thanks to a volcanic legacy, ancient oceans, and weathered by the elements. From large, landscape features like Abert Rim - rising 2,490 feet above the valley floor and distinguished as the longest exposed fault scarp in North America, to features that need to be explored in minutes at a roadside rest area taking in the views, to days exploring the area in greater detail. There are spectacular sunrises and sunsets as well as some of the darkest skies in Oregon, allowing for epic stargazing. For those interested in wildlife watching - whether it's birds, mammals or reptiles - there are more than 300 animal species in the area.
